Voyages and discoveries in the Arctic: Voyages and discoveries in the Arctic regions.

by Fanny Mayne
The first explorers of the North Polar region, the Arctic, probably crossed from Europe. From 1607 to 1611, Henry Hudson made four voyages from England to find a sea route to the Orient, but was killed in the process. His ships, the Hecla and the Discovery, were named after the book of that name by Captain James Cook, who had been on Hudson's last voyage. The Hecla was the first ship to enter the Arctic Ocean, and the Discovery was the first to reach the North Pole.
